

Emilios Avgouleas

Professor Emilios Avgouleas is the first holder of the International Banking Law and Finance chair at the University of Edinburgh which reflects a tradition of interdisciplinary teaching at the University that goes back to Adam Smith. He is an acknowledged expert in financial market regulation, banking law and finance, and global economic governance. Emilios has published extensively in the wider field of International and European finance law and economics and behavioral finance. He is the author of a large number of scholarly articles and of two monographs: Governance of Global Financial Markets: The Law, the Economics, the Politics (CUP, 2012); The Mechanics and Regulation of Market Abuse: A Legal and Economic Analysis (OUP, 2005), and he co-authors with Sir Ross Cranston the next edition of Principles of banking Law (OUP, 2014). Emilios' work has been cited in financial market policy reports and impact studies published by the EU Commission, the House of Lords, and the Irish Commission on Banking etc. He has given evidence before Parliamentary and government Committees both in the UK and abroad.

Emilios has practiced extensively in the broader field of International financial law and structured finance. He worked as an Associate at the Derivatives and Financial Institutions Group of Clifford Chance LLP, as a Managing Associate at the Financial Markets Group of Linklaters, and as an equity partner at a major Athens law firm. He has advised governments, development organizations, and central banks on issues ranging from bank rescues to sovereign debt restructuring and financial stability. More recently, he had advised the Scottish government on issues of financial stability, bank supervision, and monetary policy.

Emilios was before joining Edinburgh a University Professor of International Financial Markets and Financial Law at the University of Manchester. He was educated at the LSE (LLM, PhD) and the University of Athens (LLB(Hons)). During his doctoral studies he received a law department teaching fellowship and held an associate research fellowship with the LSE's Financial Markets Group.

Emilios has given annual lectures, lectures, and seminars and has chaired workshops in a number of leading UK and International Universities such as Oxford, Cambridge, Berkeley, LSE, Duke, Hong Kong University, University of Copenhagen, UCL, etc. Longer term visiting posts have been: Global Capital Markets Center Prof. Fellow at Duke University's Law School (AY 2008-9) and Professor of Capital Markets Law at the China-Europe School of Law, China University of Political Science and Law, Beijing (2009). Emilios sits on the editorial board of several learned journals in the field of International economic and banking Law. He is a member of the Royal Economic Society and a co-chair of the International Monetary and Financial Law Network.